

CALL FOR PAPERS

Conference on Finance, Labor and Inequality

Capri, 19-20 June 2023

The Centre for Studies in Economics and Finance (CSEF) and the Review of Corporate Finance Studies (RCFS) invite paper submissions on the interaction of financial and labor markets, as well as the impact of finance on inequality. Possible issues include:

- role of employees in the governance and financing of companies,
- response of wages, employment and career trajectories to financial shocks,
- effects of finance on income and wealth inequality and on social mobility,
- risk sharing arrangements between firms and workers,
- financial development, employment and income distribution,
- effects of financial regulations on human capital investment and job reallocation.

The conference aims to bring together researchers from financial and labor economics to discuss issues from the point of view of both disciplines. Submissions are open to members of the scientific committee. Each paper will be assigned to a discussant. Participants are expected to stay for the entire duration of the conference, which will be held at the “Mario Cacace” Multimedia Center, Via Giuseppe Orlandi 10, Anacapri (Capri), Italy. The symposium begins with a dinner on Sunday evening, June 18, and ends with lunch on Tuesday June 20, 2023.

Accommodation expenses will be covered for a maximum of three nights (June 18, 19 and 20). Travel expenses (economy fare tickets only) will be refunded only for PhD students and postdocs.

PAPER SUBMISSION: Authors are invited to electronically submit papers in PDF format (including abstract, authors' affiliations and contact information) to Ms. Stefania Maddaluno at csef@unina.it by March 20, 2023.

DUAL SUBMISSION OPTION: In the submission, authors should indicate if they wish their paper to be considered (at no extra fee) for publication by RCFS under the Dual Submission Program. This is a “no-fault” submission option: if the RCFS reviews the paper and rejects it, the authors may submit it to any SFS journal at a later date as if it was never submitted. See <http://sfs.org/dualsubmissionpolicy/> for details.
